Opening of McCaffrey's Supermarket Attracts Thousands of Eager Shoppers

The opening of McCaffrey's supermarket on Saturday drew thousands of shoppers, creating traffic jams in the aisles and at the checkout counters that were a mixed blessing to owner Jim McCaffrey.

"We're real pleased with the response," Mr. McCaffrey said on Tuesday. "But I wasn't happy that people had to wait in line so long Saturday morning. It's evened out since then, partly because our checkers have gotten a lot quicker. We trained them for a week, but even so, when you have a real person with a real order you can get confused."

Mr. McCaffrey says that the customer count in his registers tallied 3,200 customers on Saturday, 2,000 on Sunday and by noon on Monday another 1,000 customers had gone through. "That's excellent," he said. "Things are going super."

Asked whether he thought the pace would keep up, he replied, "I think it will — for several reasons. The number of people asking for our check cashing card is phenomenal. We ran out of forms and had to get more. Also, we find people are shopping the entire store, not just

Princeton Regional Schools Open Next Wednesday With New System-Wide Elementary Math Curriculum

When students return to the Princeton Regional schools on Wednesday, September 9, they will find en enrollment that is fairly stable, some new teechers, and buildings thet have been made more hebitable end attractive over the summer.

Enrollment is fairly similar to last year at about this time, with 2,597 students in grades kindergarten through 12, compared with 2,575 a year ago.

A new mathematics and language arts curriculum will be put in place this year. This is the first time teachers have been asked to use the same instructional materials in meth, seid Superintendent of Schools Cerol Choye.

Gredes K through 3 will use the University of Chicego school methemetics program. Another progrem, from Holt, Harcourt Brece Jovenovich, will be implemented in grades 4, 5 and 6.

"The new math curriculum in the elementary schools looks at math as e tool for learning, not at math for meth's sake," seid Littlebrook Principal Robert Ginsberg. The new language arts curriculum, which puts heevier emphasis on multicultural materiels, also sees reading and writing as tools for learning and thinking, he seid.

The schools ere focusing on outcome, said Dr. Choye, on how to know whether children are successful. She said essessment will go on throughout the year.

There is e new busIness administrator/board secretary at the Valley Road building, and a comptroller is expected to be hired this week. So far, there has been no replecement for Supervising Principal John Sakela. Dr. Choye expects to address the situation again at the next School Board meeting, tentatively scheduled for September 15.

Princeton High School

High School Principal Marylu Coviello reports, with evident satisfaction, that the school has been able to retain the same program as last year. "There are no program cuts," she said, "and there is no major staff turnover."

In one critical staff change, Geoffrey Holland will be aboard as choir director, replacing William Trego. Mr. Trego, highly respected and popular with students, retired in June.

A replacement for Associate Choral Director Nancianne Parrella, who enjoyed esteem equel to thet of Mr. Trego end who also retired in June, hes not yet been hired. The District wents Mr. Hollend to participete in the selection process, which is expected to move forward now thet the school yeer is beginning.

Dr. Coviello bolloves the school's extensivo chorel program cen continue with only one director, but seid that the concert seeson will require two leaders.

Months eftor her resignation, no permenent replecement hes been found for Athletic Director Cerol Persons. The seerch for a permenent athletic diroctor has been stalled beceuse four former high school dopertment heeds, all of whom ere tenured steff, have a legal cleim on the posltion. None hes ex-

Princeton Visitors Feted in Sister City Commemoration

"Once Upon a Time in Pettoranello" might sound like a title to a fairy tale, but to the visitors from Princeton who treveled there August 11 to 16 to commemorate the sister-city status, the experience was close to living in an enchanted village.

"It was out of a movie set," said Township Committeewoman Phyllis Marchand, in speaking of the events. "It was too perfect to be real."

The town itself looks like it could have been a set designer's idea for a Hollywood back lot. A gem of a gentrified town, completely rebuilt after the earthquake in 1984, it still retains its old world flavor but with none of the drawbacks. "It's almost an Italian Brigadoon," said former Mayor Kate Litvack.

There are a few old stone houses remaining in their characteristic style, but most others have been stuccoed over and freshly painted, topped off with clay tile roofs. Nick Carnevale, chairman of the sister city program, was amazed by the change in the town since he was last there.

"I was really impressed by the extraordinary renovations. I remember all the devastation after the earthquake," he said. The central square, Piazza Marconi, is the social heart of the town, the site of many an evening's passegiata (stroll), and the locale of most activities during the festive week.

Each night, a different event took plece, some lasting until 2 or 3 a.m. On the first night, a classical music concert was held, featuring the conductor Fernando Raucci, close friend of Rita Paolino, daughter of Pettoranello mayor Antonio Paolino.

Preservation Commission To Recommend Approval Of Maybury Hill Plans

After two special sessions devoted to the proposed Maybury Hill subdivision end restoretion plan, the Township Historical Preservetion Commission hes voted to recommend epprovel of the project when it comes before the Plenning Board on Wednesday, September 9.

The approvel comes with a long list of caveats and conditions, which will be forwarded to the board. Among them is the Commission's recommendation that the north wing, a later addition to the historic Maybury House that was damaged by fire end is in poor condition, not be torn down.

Witherspoon Properties, which purchesed the 15-acre property on Snowden Lane from Princeton University and proposes to restore the historic house using proceeds from subdividing the surrounding propeiiy, wants to replace the wing with a new addition.

Thomas Letitzia of the Jamieson, Moore, Peskin and Spicer law firm representing the applicant, told the Historic Preservation Commission his client will try to convince the Planning Board that the wing is in such bad shape it has to be torn down. Robert Von Zumbusch of the HPC said he did not think Witherspoon Properties had submitted enough evidence, other than its consultant's say-so, that this is the case and that other alternatives for adding the desired space to the building had not been explored.

The vote on this particular issue was 4 to 0, with Nancy Robins abstaining. Ms. Robins said she would have liked to have had more information from the archaeological study in that particular area before endorsing the new wing. Additional archaeological information had just been received from the applicant, according to Elizabeth Tukey, HPC chairman, and the Commission had not had a chance to study it.

Another issue which was discussed at length was what must be done to keep the historic farmhouse, which dates to the 18th century and was the birthplace of the signer of the Declaration of Independence from North Carolina, Joseph Hewes, from deteriorating further.

Witherspoon Properties wants assurance, which the HPC could not give, that the Planning Board will approve the subdivision, the source of funds for the restoration, as well as the restoration plan itself. Ideally it would like to be able to begin restoration this fall and not have to spend money on stabilization measures that might have to be undone for the restoration.

Concern About Old House

The neighbors and the HPC, which is charged with overseeing the preservation and protection of structures and properties in the historic districts of the Township, are very concerned about the deterioration of the old house and believe it is incumbent upon this new owner to winterproof the house to prevent further damage.

A compromise of sorts was arrived at whereby the HPC will recommend to the Planning Board that if restoration work has not begun on the house by November 1 that the applicant will implement the stabilization plan he has suggested, which is somewhat less demanding than that proposed by the historic preservation officer Christine Lewandowski.

Other matters had the unanimous endorsement of the five members of the HPC present at the Monday afternoon meeting. In general, the HPC was pleased that the 11 lots in the subdivision had been reduced to seven, although some members, particularly Mr. Von Zumbusch, expressed a desire to have lot one reconfigured or made larger so that the house that is built on it could be located away from the ramp that once led to the barn, which no longer exists. Mr. Von Zumbusch also wanted more screening between two particular lots.

The HPC agreed to recommend that Snowden Lane not be widened and that no sidewalk be constructed, to preserve the trees and the rural character of the road.

The HPC will continue to recommend more lamp posts with a lower wattage along the road that will access the seven new lots and hopes that a carriage lamp type of lighting fixture be used.

If the north wing of the historic house is demolished and a new wing added, the HPC would like it to have a slanted roof and windows in keeping with the character of the rest of the house. However, the new landscaping plan generally found favor with the members of the Commission.

pennants flapping in the breeze, new landscaping, a newly designed entrance, plenty of advance publicity and the presence of pickets and police all signified that something special was happening.

The pickets were members of the United Food and Commercial Workers Local 1360 who passed out informational flyers contending that wages and benefits at the new store do not meet levels established by the union's area collective bargaining agreements. Mr. McCaffrey says his wages and benefits are equal to or better than union scale, and adds that no one from the union has asked him for actual information on his wage package.

The picketing was peaceful, and the new supermarket continued to draw the curious, some of whom said they would come back later when it wasn't so crowded. Those who braved the crowds were generally complimentary of the layout, the lighting and the signage. One woman was ecstatic to find a particular brand of yoghurt she likes and to have her preference confirmed as being superior by the young man refilling the dairy case.

The Princeton Shopping Center management celebrated the opening by sponsoring a band concert in the center courtyard in the early afternoon. Many of the other stores held sidewalk sales to cash in on the enhanced activity.

Across the back of Super-Fresh was a long white sign with big red lettering saying that prices had been reduced on 3,000 items in the store. The parking lot there was noticeably less crowded, although the checkout counters inside seemed busy.

For the first time since Epstein's moved out of the Princeton Shopping Center in 1990, the parking lot at the north end was filled with cars. Blue and red

New Medical Offices Proposed on Bunn Drive

Preliminary plans for a one-story office building on Bunn Drive have been filed at the Planning Board. The Planning Board tentatively is scheduled to review the plans in concept at its meeting on Thursday, September 17.

The plans have been filed by the ophthalmology group Felton Wong & Grabowski, which currently leases space in the healthcare building at 419 Harrison Street owned and renovated by Princeton Medical Group. The site on which the building is proposed to be built is 5.8 acres at 256 Bunn Drive.

The tract is in the OR-1 (office research zone 1) which has an eight percent maximum floor-area-ratio (FAR) that would generate a maximum buildable area of 20,449 square feet. The tract is located adjacent to and just south of the so-called Lowe tract, which is in litigation brought by the owners when the Township reduced the permissable FAR several years ago.

According to a memorandum from Dr. Michael Wong to the Planning Board, under the terms of a proposed settlement of the Lowe litigation, the property under consideration for a medical office would be rezoned OR-2 and the maximum FAR would increase to 10 percent. That would yield 25,561 buildable square feet.

FWG Associates has filed plans for concept review showing the proposed building as both a 25,500-square-foot and a 20,449-square-foot structure. The removal of corner bays at each corner of the modular design would accomplish the reduction. Dr. Wong writes that he and his partners will not apply for an FAR in excess of the permitted maximum.

The building will house condominium medical offices, which Dr. Wong and his group are building for physician colleagues, not for themselves. They purchased the land some time ago, he says, and many physician colleagues have expressed an interest in the opportunity to own a condominium in a modern building that could be outfitted at a lower cost than an existing older building. The building will be of metal and stone with flexible interior office space, he says.

Public Hearing Oct. 1

The Planning Board has scheduled a public hearing on the terms of the proposed settlement to the Lowe litigation on Thursday, October 1. Two minor subdivision requests are also scheduled for that evening, one for the property at 18-20 Pine Street and one for a Hazlet Road property.

Also, Pond View Partners, developers of the so-called PDS-Cadle tract behind Princeton Day School, are scheduled for a hearing that evening on their request for final approval of phase 2. The application involves 37 acres off Pretty Brook Road for which 31 single-family residential lots averaging 3/4 of an acre and six open space lots are proposed. Phase 1 of this development involves faculty housing for Princeton Day School on land near the skating rink.

On September 17, when the FWG Associates concept review is scheduled, the Planning Board is expected to spend time at the end of the meeting discussing revisions to its rules and regulations. The revisions were drawn up following a series of subcommittee meetings last winter and have not been adopted by the board as a whole.

2 Tapes Ruled Admissible In Menendez Murder Trial

By a 7-0 vote, the California Supreme Court last week ruled that two recorded tapes of conversations between Lyle and Erik Menendez and a psychotherapist could be admitted as evidence.

Lyle, 24, and Erik, 21, former residents of this area, have been charged with the shotgun slaying of their parents Jose Menendez, 45, and Kitty Menendez, 47, in their Beverly Hills home on August 20, 1989.

The two tapes are considered damaging to the brothers because they reportedly contain a confession by Erik explaining why they killed their parents and how they planned and executed the crime. Held in jail since their arrest in March, 1990, both brothers could be sentenced to death if found guilty.

Defense attorneys for the brothers have tried through lower court appeals to keep the tapes suppressed, claiming conversations between a therapist and patients are privileged.

In its decision the California Supreme Court ruled that only the first two of four tapes were admissible because they contained threats agninst the psychotherapist, Dr. Jerome Oziel. The first tape records Erik's first visit to Dr. Oziel on October 31, 1989, two and a half months after the murder, when he reveals in detail the planning and execution of the slayings. Lyle arrived later and allegedly flew into a rage when he heard what Erik had confessed.

The second tape contains Dr. Oziel's recollection of n November 2 meeting with Erik and Lyle in which Lyle revealed to Dr. Oziel that he and his brother sat in their Jeep after the first meeting and Lyle asked Erik, "Well, now how do we kill Oziel?"

Dr. Oziel records that the brothers told him their reason for the killings was not, as state prosecutors claimed, to get control of their father's $14 million estate, but was motivated out of hate. They told him, the tapes reveal, that they could no longer tolerate "their father's domination, messages of inadequacy and impossible standards."

Barred by the court ruling was a November 28 tape of Dr. Oziel's notes and a December 11 recording of an actual therapy session.

Fearing for his safety following the threats, Dr. Oziel moved his family into a hotel. Police were made aware of the tapes after Dr. Oziel's receptionist overheard conversations in the first meeting and told authorities what she knew.

Conversations between a psychiatrist and patient are confidential but they can be disclosed, courts have ruled, if they contain threats or if the therapist concludes the client is dangerous and wishes to warn others.

A spokesman for the District Attorney's Office commented that the defense could still make further challenges on the tapes, which has delayed the start of the trial so far, before and during the trial. Lyle's attorney, Jill Lansing, was quoted as saying she does not think the tapes are as damaging as many believe.

With the issue of the tapes apparently resolved, the next step in the protracted case is expected to be a pre-trial hearing or an indictment.

Two Homes Are Entered In Community Village

There were two entries last week into homes in Princeton Community Village.

Last Tuesday morning between 1 and 8:30 a.m., while the occupants were asleep upstairs, someone entered a Mulberry Row home through an unlocked kitchen window. Once inside, the intruder stole the victim's purse and took her car keys.

The purse, missing $200, was later found burning in a nearby dumpster in Hilltop Park off Bunn Drive. The thief used the keys to enter the victim's car, taking $1.50 in change and a Sunoco credit card.

A Butternut Row home wns entered overnight the next day, again through an unlocked kitchen window screen. The intruder took the victim's car keys from her purse left on the kitchen table to steal her 1985 blue Honda.

Fifteen minutes after the car wns discovered missing, it was found the same morning, undamaged, on a rear dirt access road.

Township police also report an entry into the Department of Food Service Building on University Place on the University campus.

Someone pried open a front metal door and smashed an inner window to gain access, but there was no damage inside and the intruder did not take anything.

Laser Printer Is Stolen From Fine Hall Library

An Apple laser printer and network connector, valued at $1,631.21, was stolen early last week from the library in Fine Hall off Washington Road on the Princeton University campus. Township police report no sign of a forced entry.

Borough police report the theft of a $1,000 camcorder from the second-floor library in the Third World Center building on the corner of Olden Street and Prospect Avenue. During the time the camcorder was taken — between last Tuesday and June 26 — there were a lot of people in and out of the building, said Chief Thomas Michaud. There are no suspects.

Two video cassette recorders were stolen overnight last week from the basement in the First Baptist Church on the corner of John Street and Paul Robeson Place. Entry was gained through a basement window that was partially broken. Police have not received a value of the missing items.

Two thefts were reported at the Westminster Choir College. On Monday, someone entered a room in Seahrook Hall between 1 and 8 p.m. and stole a student's purse from atop a desk. Total loss: $92.

The previous morning, a student from the Township mislaid his wallet in a dorm building lounge. When he found it later, $64 was missing.

The Jeep Wagoneer of an Easton, Pa. resident was entered Friday while the car was parked for an hour in a lot off University Place beyond the Dinky railway station. The thief forced open a vent window in order to unlock the door.

Taken were articles of clothing valued at $850 including sports coats and jackets, a $241 radio, a tote bag and $400 worth of miscellaneous items.

in the lot next to the Boat House on campus on the corner of Washington and Faculty Roads. Police said the ignition switch had been locked but the cycle had not been secured with a chain.

Four bicycles were taken last week, two in the Borough and two in the Township. In the former, a $300 silver Falcon, locked to itself, was removed during the weekend from a garage in the rear of an apartment building in the 200 block of Nassau Street. Earlier in the week, a 10-speed Murray hike was stolen despite being locked with a chain to a street light post on Nassau near Princeton Avenue. It is valued at $130.

In the Township, Sgt. David Cromwell reports that a girl's unlocked Huffy bike was stolen last Tuesday from a rack at the Community Park Pool complex; a Hun School student's $500 yellow Trek bike was taken from a rack where it had been secured with a cable lock. The cable was cut overnight.

Fighting Brings Charges Against 2 Men, Both 20

Two 20-year-old men were both issued aummonses last week for fighting in the Palmer Square area.

Charged with disorderly conduct were Peter J. Hall of Tamaron Court, Plninsboro, and Troy McCracken of New Brunswick. McCracken sustained scrapes to his knees, elbow and cheek but refused medical attention; Hall showed no signs of any injury. Neither would tell police why they were fighting. "They were not very cooperative," said Chief Thomas Michaud.

The incident began around 11:40 Thursday night when Ptl. Michael Bender, driving by in a patrol car, observed the two fighting near the Palmer Square klosk. Ptl. Bender stopped his car, appronched them, talked to them and tried to calm them down. He warned them not to continue fighting. They agreed to stay away from each other.

Ptl. Bender then cautioned foot patrolman John Bleier to be alert for n potential problem. A few minutes later, Ptl. Bleier saw Hall and McCracken throwing punches at each other. Ptl. Bender returned in his patrol car and the two officers mnnaged to subdue the pair and place them under arrest.

"They were still trying to get at ench other," snid Capt. Michaud. "Yelling obscenities at each other; it took some time to calm them down." At headquarters the two had to be separated because of their still hostile feelings.

Both were later released. But they will come together again on September 28 when they are scheduled to appear in Borough court.

Shoplifter Apprehended After Incident at Wawa

A 32-year-old shoplifter was apprehended Monday morning after she was observed stealing at the Wawa store on University Plnce, but an accomplice escaped in a car.

Apprehended by Ptl. Steven Riccitello as she fled on foot was Renna D. Smith of Trenton. In her handbag, which she had thrown on the floor, an employee found 10 packages of Tylenol, seven of Advil, 11 packages of AA batteries and two rolls of film worth a combined $t30.08.

According to Chief Thomas Michaud, a female employee observed Smith kneeling in an aisle with a male suspect, putting items in her purse. The employee stopped them as the two were walking out the front door. The employee took the suspect by her arm and said, "Come back in the store; we've called the police."

Smith pulled her arm free, threw her purse on the floor and fled. Ptl. Riccitello, responding to a 10:45 call and supplied with a description of the suspects, apprehended Smith a short distance away. Her companion drove off in a car.

Although police were able to get the license number of the car, a check revealed that it was not registered to a man. "We're still working on it," said Chief Michaud. Smith is due in court here on September 14.

Three Persons Fined In Crimtnal Court Here

Three Princeton residents were fined Monday by Judge Ray J. Barson in Borough criminal court.

Justin Crosby, 74 Gallup Road, charged with malicious damage for painting grafitti, was fined $500, $25 court costs and $50 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board. Judge Barson suspended $400 of the $500 fine and placed Mr.Crosby on probation for one year. He was represented by attorney Edward J. Bergman.

Pedro Elias, 202 Ewing Street, was fined $170 and $50 VCCB after being found guilty on a disorderly person charge. He was also ordered to make

Police Announce "Buckle-up Princeton"

If you drive without seat belts or fail to use child restraint devices during the month of September, Borough police are going to be watching — and possibly handing out aummonses.

Chief Thomas Michaud announced this week that the emphasis of the month-long traffic safety program, which Borough police have named "Buckle-up Princeton", will be on education and awareness rather than enforcement. To get their message across, the program will be described in newspapers and on community service announcements over the radio. The AAA organization had donated a banner which will be spread across Nassau Street. "We did not have to spend any money on this," said Chief Michaud.

There is a big push hy the National Highway Traffic Safety Association, reported Chief Michaud, to attain a nationwide average of 70 percent compliance with the aafety belt-child restraint lawa by the end of 1992. Borough police have taken several aurveys recently which diaclose that seat belt usage in the Borough has averaged 69 percent. "So we're clase," said Chief Michaud. A most recent survey on Monday came up with a 76 percent usage.

Borough afficers plan to set up check points periodically at various locations and pass out safety literature to motorists they observe not wearing belts. Police can't make traffic stops just for failure to wear a safety belt, Chief Michaud explained, because failure to do so is considered a secondary violatian. This will be an educational program, not one of enforcement.

However, Chief Michaud cautioned that Borough police will step up enforcement of the seat belt law in terms of other violations. For example, if a car is stopped far a violation and the driver is belted but a passenger isn't, in the past, more than likely, police would have just issued a warning to the passenger; now is it much more likely police will issue the passenger a summons, said Chief Michaud.

Those found guilty of failing to wear a seat belt are subject to a $36 fine.

It hasn't happened in the Princeton area yet, but Township police reveal they have received reports from south Jersey authorities of persons calling on the phone posing as police officers, asking the person on the line to reveal their telephone credit card pin number.

HiTops Teen Council Attends a Retreat

The Princeton Youth Fund has pravided HiTops with a grant far the training of the 16 new HiTops Teen Council members.

They attended a three-day retreat at the Fairview Lakes YMCA Camp and Conference Center at the end of August. During the retreat these seniors from Princeton High School, Princetan Day School and Stuart Country Day School, received training in leadership and group dynamics, and developed communication and team building skills.

Following the retreat the Teen Council members will attend in-depth classes on human sexuality and sexual health at the Education Center at HiTops. This is in preparation for their workshop schedule for the school year.

As peer educators they will conduct workshops for teens on issues such as postponing sexual involvement, sexually transmitted diseases (including AIDS), acquaintance rape, and gender issues. They will also offer a workshop for parents, which gives parents the opportunity to discuss teen issues with teenagers, and to learn helpful communication skills for talking to their own teenagers.

For more information about HiTops and the educational programs call 683-5155.

Horsedrawn Plowing Contest at Howell Farm

New Jersey's only plowing match will be held Saturday at Howell Living History Farm in Hopewell Township. The public is invited to watch and participate in the event, which will begin at t0 a.m. and will feature horsedrawn plowing and wagon-driving competitions, pony rides, a pig roast, and a children's craft program.

Fifteen teams of big "work horses" from New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland are entered in the match, which tests the performance of farmers, their horses, and their plows as they turn furrows the way people did a century ago. Elmer Lapp of Kinzers, Pa., and Jeremy Mills, of Trenton, will judge professional plowers from 10 a.m. until noon. Teamsters who rate best in these classes will receive trophies, ribbons, and checks.

Anyone from the public age 16 and older can try their hand at plowing in a novice event to be held at t0:45. Experienced teamsters without horses may use n Howell Farm hitch to compete in the Old Timer class at t0:30. Persans wishing to participate in either of these classes must register at the announcement stand by 10:15.

Children's activities will include pony rides from 11 to 3 and a craft program, "Whirligigs," from noon to 3. Animals such as sheep, chickens, pigs and calves can be seen in the farmyard area all day.

Beginning at noon, hungry plowers and visitors can lunch on roast pork sandwiches, a chicken barbecue, kosher franks, and Howell Farm potatoes and sweet corn. Noontime fun also includes exhibition hitches and a ribbon-pinning ceremony led by Mercer County Executive Robert Prunetti.

At 2:15 p.m., visitors can watch as each teamster guides a horsedrawn wagon through a series of turns, gullies and "back-ins" during the obstacle course driving competition.

Super Bowl Steer

One of the teams featured in this year's event is a yoke of oxen that includes "Giant," a 2,115-pound steer won in Superbowl XXI, when New Jersey Governor Tom Kean bet Colorado Governor Roy Romer that the New York Giants would beat the Denver Broncos. The Giant's 39-20 victory insured a new life for the steer, which was originally destined to become steak.

The steer is used in Howell Farm's "Animal Traction Intern Program," which prepares agricultural extension personnel for roles in international small farm projects where oxen, horses and other animals are still an important source of farm power.

Howell Farm is located on Valley Road in Hopewell Township, just off Route 29 two miles south of Lambertville. Parking and admission are free.

Raindate for the plowing match is Saturday, September 12.

Red Cross Raises Funds For Hurricane Relief

McCaffrey's supermarket shared its grand opening at the Princeton Shopping Center Saturday with the American Red Cross New Jersey Capital Area Chapter to help raise money for the Disaster Relief Fund and victims of Hurricane Andrew.

Jim McCaffrey, president of McCaffrey's and on the board of the Red Cross Langhorne, Pa., chapter, made the cooperative effort possible, according to Jane Cannon, communications coordinator for the New Jersey Capital Area Chapter. "Almost $3,000 was collected this weekend through the generous support of the community," she said.

Many other local companies have been offering their help either through an internal process of donation collection or offering special supplies, according to Doris Harper, director of disaster and community services for the chapter.

The Red Cross will be at McCaffrey's through Sunday, September 6, from 9 to 6. For more information, call the chapter at 924-2404, or mail donations to the local chapter, payable to American Red Cross, earmarked Disaster Relief Fund, 182 North Harrison Street, Princeton 08540.

Annual Giving Campaign Tops $2 Million at L'ville

Thanks to nearly 5,200 alumni, parents and friends, The Lawrenceville School Annual Giving program raised more than $2 million in unrestricted support in the 1991-1992 academic year.

Parents of Lawrentians past and present contributed more than $230,000.

HELPING HURRICANE VICTIMS: Princeton residents, Laura Ridge, 8, left, Julia Pinaire, 8, and Aly Pinaire, 5½, at McCaffrey's grand opening on Saturday at the Princeton Shopping Center, give a donation to the Red Cross to help storm victims.

Funds Needed to Help Hurricane Victims

The worst natural disaster to hit Florida since Hurricane Betsy in 1965, and what may be the most costly disaster in U.S. history, Hurricane Andrew is requiring extensive emergency relief efforts — efforts that will continue for a long time after the storm is over.

For the American Red Cross, emergency help already has involved thousands of local paid and volunteer staff, assisted by 152 Red Cross workers outside the affected area, according to National Headquarters.

Doris Harper, New Jersey Capital Area Chapter director of community and disaster services, said, "There are people from the Capital Area Chapter who are on standby to assist. The relief effort required is tremendous, and as relief activities continue, we have a cadre of volunteers in the State from which to draw. Two people from our Chapter have made themselves available, and we are ready should they be called."

The first concern is people, but disaster relief funds are severely depicted because of the record number of disasters over the past two years.

The Red Cross organization and its local chapters have launched a national appeal to replenish funding. The State's 35 chapters have raised $766,000 of a projected $1 million goal, which is part of the national $8 million raised so far towards the national $30 million goal.

As a sample of fund utilization, from just the period April 1 to July 28, 1992, the American Red Cross National Headquarters has estimated that non-recurring Red Cross disaster relief operations costing at least $25,000 involved 38 disasters, ranging from earthquakes and floods to windstorms and fires. This required relief assistance to approximately 9,182 people and service of 376,331 meals, which cost an estimated $10,645,652.

Through the generosity of the American people who support Red Cross, assistance is provided free of charge. Red Cross provides assistance in the way of temporary shelter, clothing, food and emergency medical supplies, and meals to emergency workers. Support for current and pending disasters is available seven days a week around the clock.

On August 25, Florida still had 61 Red Cross shelters open, housing about 34,000 people. At peak there were 229 shelters housing over 84,000 evacuees. On August 26, 133 shelters were open in Louisiana with 23,273 people being assisted by at least 450 Red Cross workers; in Mississippi, 34 shelters had 4,330 residents, and the Red Cross served 3,120 meals there the night before; in Texas, 20 shelters were opened with 2,861 inhabitants.

People wishing to help may send a donation to the Disaster Relief Fund at their local Red Cross chapter, or to P.O. Box 37243, Washington, D.C. 20013. Donations also may be charged to a credit card by calling 1-800-842-2200. The Spanish language number is 1-800-257-7575.

perience as an athletic director.

To fill the breach, the school plans to appoint an interim athletic director this week, probably from among its coaching staff. School officials remain tight-lipped about the progress of talks with the four former department heads.

Thomas Ronge will replace Antonia Nielsen as computer education teacher. Mrs. Nielsen retired last year.

This fall will see a stricter attendance policy, one which allows no unexcused absences for freshmen and sophomores and four for juniors and seniors.

There will be an expansion of Project Discovery, a special program for at-risk students which has shown some good results. It has been enlarged to include both freshmen and sophomores, and math teaching has been added.

The high school has been spruced up over the summer. Carpeting has been removed from the hallways and seven classrooms and replaced with tile, and the slate roofs in the 1928 section have been removed and replaced.

John Witherspoon Middle School

There's a new addition to John Witherspoon: three portable classrooms adjacent to the playground. They became necessary when, in April, the community was informed that Johnson Park would not be able to open this year.

This fourth elementary school, which was expected to be ready for the 1992-93 school year, was to trigger the return of fifth grade students to the elementary schools. These youngsters now remain in John Witherspoon.

The trailer-like classrooms will be air-conditioned, heated, and equipped with a communications hookup to the school, which is about 30 feet away. They are also handicapped-accessible.

They will be used only for foreign-language classes, which means that most students in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades will spend one period a day in the portable units.

A new language arts teacher is being hired to replace Linda Coakley, who will now teach drama — a new addition to the John Witherspoon program.

Mark Volpe, a 7th and 8th grade science teacher, will return on a permanent basis. He was at the school for last term's final seven weeks.

John Witherspoon also came in for its share of fixing-up this summer. The D-wing roof was replaced. All corridors and stairwells were painted, paddle fans were installed in all second-floor classrooms in B, C and D wings, and smoke sensors were placed in corridors and stairwells.

About 720 students are enrolled in the middle school, about 16 more than last year. Assistant Principal Leslie Turbeville doesn't believe the school will be too crowded, and notes that it once housed 900 students. He said he was, however, looking forward to having a smaller number of students next year, when Johnson Park reopens and the fifth grade returns to the elementary schools.

Community Park School

John Kozmark, serving his final year as principal of Community Park, is looking forward to a very active year. Mr. Kazmark has been tapped to be principal of Johnson Park; his replacement is expected to be hired in February or March.

There is a new communications handicapped class at the school, for students in grades K through 2. Youngsters will be mainstreamed for part of the day, and eventually will be completely mainstreamed. Communications handicapped students are those who have some difficulty with expressive or receptive language.

Shelley Horowitz, who is new to the District, will be the communications handicapped teacher.

A new second and third grade multi-age class will be taught by Kathy Winder, who was on leave last year.

About 386 students are enrolled to date, which puts the school in good shape, said Mr. Kazmark. Three years ago, he said, there were 407 students.

"We have not maxed out at that level, and we had a successful year three years ago," said Mr. Kazmark. "The Johnson Park opening is absolutely necessary next year, but I feel confident this year."

PHS Class of '67 Reunion

The Princeton High School Class of 1967's 25th Class Reunion will be held on Saturday, November 28, from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at The Nassau Inn.

For more information, call 466-3155.

Mr. Kazmark said he looks back on a successful year last year, and looks forward to the months ahead. He said that sub-groups of the PTO will meet in early fall to discuss upcoming projects.

Riverside School

Principal William Ciruilo sees about the same enrollment as last year's 314 students. There will be a new kindergarten teacher, Dawn Devaux, who will begin her first year in the Princeton District.

Last year, said Mr. Cirullo, the school focused on technology education as an extension of the classroom. In a school-wide pilot, a computer workshop area was established for use by students and staff.

This proved very successful, he said, and the program will be incorporated into the curriculum this year.

Riverside will have about 70 youngsters in the English as a Second Language program (where youngsters are taken out of the classroom for a minimum of a half hour each day and taught English). To help welcome international and new parents to the school, Riverside will hold a tour and tea on Tuesday at 3 p.m.

"We are anxious to get going," said Mr. Cirullo. "We have done a lot of planning, and there will be a lot of exciting programs. We're ready to move forward."

More work was done at Riverside this summer than at any other elementary school. In an asbestos abatement project, classroom ceilings were replaced in 11 rooms, the gym office, and the storeroom. New classroom lights and paddle fans were also installed.

Carpeting was removed from two classrooms and replaced with tile. The library carpet was also removed. Finally, installation of classroom, corridor and administrative offices windows was completed, and broken concrete sidewalks were replaced.

Littlebrook School

A surprisingly large number of children requiring bilingual education will enter kindergarten at Littlebrook. This is the last year the full bilingual program will be housed at the school. Next year, when Johnson Park opens, the bilingual program will be divided between Littlebrook and Community Park.

Twenty Hispanic kindergarteners will require bilingual education, in which basic skills are taught in Spanish. (There has been no corresponding increase in Hispanic students in other grades.)

The bilingual students will be together for 1½ to two hours a day, and will spend the balance of their day in their regular kindergarten class.

The bilingual teacher will work with the regular kindergarten classes one period each week on bilingual and bicultural activities. "This will give the bilingual kids an opportunity to help lead the others," said Principal Robert Ginsberg.

The school will be the site of a theater residency, funded jointly by the PTO and the New Jersey Council of the Arts.

The residency will include a storytelling component — where children will hear stories and will develop their own stories — and a residency, probably developed with McCarter Theatre. This will allow an artist-in-residence to work on an extended basis with a core group of students — in this case, fourth graders.

The communications handicapped students at Littlebrook are in the third and fourth grade. For the first time, instead of mainstreaming the children into typical classrooms from a communications handicapped class, the reverse will happen. They will be in a regular classroom, and will be taken out to receive the necessary special instruction.

Donna DiGirolomo, who is new to the district, will teach the communications handicapped class.

A highlight this fall will be Littlebrook's second African-American Children's Book Fair, scheduled for Saturday, November 14. Last year, more than $19,000 in books were sold. The proceeds — $1,900 — were divided among the three elementary schools and the middle school, and were used to purchase multicultural books.

Littlebrook is also planning another international festival, a science week, and an arts festival combined with the theater residency.

Mrs. B's Cleaners

Everything you wanted to know about dry cleaning but were afraid to ask!!

Along with all the other sensationalism seen on TV and in print, it is sometimes hard to differentiate fact from fiction. Bill Brennan of Mrs. B's Cleaners would like to review some of the stories and statements recently put forth by various segments of the media, and perhaps view them in a different perspective. Myth #1: Dry cleaning is a rip-off. The dry cleaning operation is a relatively straight-forward process, using a chemical solvent instead of water to clean the garments in a machine very much like a combination washer-dryer. Throw the clothes in, and half-hour later take them out, all-finished right? Wrong! Most spots and stains in garments require that a series of chemicals be applied and worked in to the fabric to remove the stain. The clothes come out of the machine fully-finished without a single wrinkle. Fact is, somebody else has to press the garment. All-in-all, the average garment is inspected at least 6 times at Mrs. B's before final packaging. Add all this effort to the two transactions at the counter (incoming and outgoing), and there suddenly appears to be a very labor intensive process, of which the physical drycleaning is only a small portion. From a more historical perspective, the average cost of drycleaning a man's suit was equal to the cost of a man's haircut which has risen dramatically, while the cost of dry cleaning has barely kept pace with inflation during this period. Customers at Mrs. B's Cleaners get good value for their $$, consistent quality drycleaning and laundering and friendly, individual service. Their expert spotting and finishing staff are trained in the latest methods and up-to-date on the latest fabrics and fashions. Myth #2: Drycleaning is environmentally unsound. So, is electrical power generation, so are automobiles. So is the act of washing your clothing. We have all seen, in the media, various examples of irresponsible actions by members of the drycleaning community. But it is wrong to condemn an entire industry based on the actions of a handful of individuals. It is in this venue, that the media, driven solely by a profit motive, sensationalizes fitting to outlaw the use of automobiles because of the actions of a few drivers? Of course not! Modern drycleaning equipment provides two major benefits to civilization. It permits the use of fabrics made from readily renewable resources, i.e., wool, silk, linen, and rayon (which is derived from cellulose), that would not be otherwise be economical to use, since they would have to be discarded after being soiled. It also reduces the overall amount of resources consumed by an average of 80% in terms of water, detergents, electricity, etc., when compared with laundering. The State of New Jersey mandates that emissions from drycleaning machines be less than 0.01 lbs./hr.. This is about a teaspoonful of material. While laboratory studies have indicated that mega-doses of the particular solvent that most drycleaners use can cause liver damage or may be carcinogenic in laboratory animals, studies of the human population, working in an environment where permissible levels of exposure were far greater than they are today, have indicated neither of these biological effects. On the other hand, it would be foolish to needlessly inhale the high levels of the fumes for long periods of time. Properly maintained equipment does not pose a threat to the environment, and properly cleaned clothing does not present a health hazard! Bill and Anne Marie Brennan of Mrs. B's Cleaners have invested in State-of-the-Art equipment as an investment in and commitment to a cleaner environment. Mrs. B's has been accepting hangers for recycling since 1987 and now have a new program utilizing reusable garment bags. This will reduce the amount of plastic bags in our landfills. Mrs. B's Cleaners is located at the Grand Union (Princeton North) Shopping Center on Route 206 (Near Route 518). Stop in and find out for yourself what Quality means. Hours are 7:30am through 7:30pm Monday thru Friday and 8am thru 5pm on Saturday. Their phone number is (609)-924-1617.

Financing Joint Agencies; Evaluation Is Overdue

To the Editor of Town Topics:

In last week's TOWN TOPICS, the Democratic candidates for Township Committee expressed opinions on the current method for financing joint Township and Borough agencies.

Actually, this subject was prompted by the League of Women Voters for their Election Information Sheets to be published for registered voters.

The question the League of Women Voters asked all candidates was:

"Although Princeton Borough and Princeton Township have separate governments, they cooperate in many areas and have set up joint committees in such areas as civil rights, health care, planning, recreation, and sewer operation. Is it time to re-evaluate the formulas for the funding of these shared services and the representation on these joint boards? If so, what would you recommend?"

It occurred to us, the Republicon Township Committee candidates, you might wish to publish our thoughts on this matter, and perhaps those of the Borough candidates as well.

A "comprehensive evaluation" of all contracts between the Township and the Borough had been under way by the Republican candidates since May, and we have learned a great deal.

In some cases, the Township pays two-thirds of the cost but only has half of the vote of allocated costs. In other areas, the Township pays 100 percent of the cost resulting from 50 percent Borough voting power.

Since the Borough has again defeated consolidation hopes, we find our on-going evaluation of joint agencies essential to insure the Township taxpayer having equitable representation at a cost the Township can control.

There are specific contracts (executed between 1961 to 1977 with later amendments) between the two municipalities which quite clearly outline how each agency is funded, how each operates and how each can be terminated.

An in-depth evaluation is long overdue. However, the study must be completed without expense to the taxpayer.

Conflict Charges "Silly" In Case of the Curtises

To the Editor of Town Topics:

What has happened to John and Deborah Curtis is a shame and represents, to me, a lot of the insensitivity to the needs of people in this community and country at large.

I only know John Curtis from "working out" at the Princeton Fitness Center where he, like the rest of us aging, stay in shape. To me, John is the perfect role model for any youngster in Princeton. An ex-pro football player, a warm man. If I were a parent of a middle school child (mine is enlering 10th grode) I would be thrilled for such a mentor to take o short (or long!) position in our summer program.

So he received $3000. Big deal! He's a teacher. Does Mrs. Soffronoff (wife of physician) feel he can afford to volunteer his time to our children? How special! Confliet of interest? How silly!

Here is a man who is willing to give our children the best for a minimal amount of pay for two months and we are supposed to worry about conflict of interest?

Personally, I feel strougly that Mrs. Curtis would be a great asset to our Board of Education because she can speak to the needs of many of our children (including mine) who some unmentionoble Board Members apparently aren't aware of.

Correction

To the Editor, Town Topics:

In my letter to the editor of TOWN TOPICS, Wednesday, August 26, there is an error which I made in paragraph four, sentence two. It should read:

"One of these $100-million-dollar apparent errors by Pisauro is costing the local taxpayers of Morristown additional unexpected taxes this year!"

Thank you for your attention to the above.

From parents, children and the staff of the Princeton Housing Authority:

The new park and Mary Moss Playground are a wonderful and welcome addition to this neighborhood.

The park has been well planned to incorporate all age groups within the area. We hope that everyone will enjoy the facilities and take very special care of the park.

New Faces, New Spaces As Hun Starts New Year

The onset of the 1992-93 school year at The Hun School will bring the opening of remodeled and refurbished spaces and the institution of a number of new programs. Starting his second academic year as head of the coed boarding and day school on Edgerstoune Road, Headmaster Paul Feakins describes the summer as having been "an ambitious renovation period on what is already a very busy campus."

When classes resume, the school will formally open The Dance Center at Hun. The new program, to be directed by Mary Papa, will provide professional instruction in ballet, pointe, tap and jazz dance and aerobic exercise to Hun students and to the general public. Ms. Papa's experience includes dance education at the American Ballet Thenter, Dance Masters of America, and the Cowanova Ballet Academy.

She has taught at the Princeton Ballet, and the Atlantic Contemporary Ballet Academy and is also the founder of The Royal Ballet Centre in Hamilton. New facilities rededicated for the Dance Center include a 2,500-square-foot dance studio in the upper school academic building.

The School is also planning broader offerings in academic music and performance programs. A previously underutilized lecture hall was remodeled over the summer as a choral study area. The new room, with broad, carpeted steps and acoustically dampened design, now resemhles a small interior theater and will house clnsses in choral music, jazz band and drama.

Renovations to make room for a new Study Strategies Center have also recently been completed in the academic building. The staffed interdisciplinary center will offer students help with organizing time and materials, strategies for studying, conducting temporary study groups, and serve as a clearlnghouse for student tutoring programs.

Assistant Head Ann Trevelyan describes the Study Center as a flexible resource, saying, "Other Interdisciplinary programs we've instituted, such as those in our Writing Center, have taught us that getting a center open and meeting existing demands helps us identify additional ways to use the resource across the curriculum."

Other physical plant improvements include new carpets, refinished floors, exterior repolnting and cleaning for Russell Hall, refurhished faculty apartments, improvements to shared spaces in dormitories, newly redesigned and renovated offices and classrooms for the computer department, new computer hardware for classrooms and administrative offices, and new lab desks for the middle school science laboratory.

Most alterations and improvements to the physical plant were scheduled to be completed after the close of summer school and before the opening of the academic year in September. "With such little time and such great ambitions, its amazing that we have gotten it all finished in time," Mr. Feakins says, adding that "despite the hectic pace, the improvements will make for an even better year than last year."

Enrollment at the school typically varies only slightly around 500 students. At the start of the 1992-93 school year enrollment is currently expected to be 503. Of that number, 111 students will board on campus, and 93 will be enrolled in the Middle School.

There are 12 new members of the Hun faculty. Laura Bedford, a graduate of Hamilton College, will teach German in the upper school. Cyle Brueggeman will be in the Academic Learning Center. A graduate of The University of the South, her most recent teaching post was at St. Andrew's School in Sewanne, Tenn.

Jeffrey Goodell will also be teaching in the Academic Learning Center. A graduate of Williams College in Massachusetts, he will be living on campus with his family. Simon Holdaway, originally from England and educated at Portsmouth Polytechnic, will teach science.

Ted Kenyon will teach history and economics. He is a graduate of Hobart College and holds an MBA from Babson. His experience includes coaching hockey at Summit High School and lacrosse at Pingry.

William Mackenzie is the school's new head nurse. He will live on campus with his wife, Anne Mackenzie, originally of Kingston, who will serve as associate nurse. Ms. Mackenzie is a graduate of Hun.

Robert Myslik, of Skillman, who served as the assistant soccer coach at Hun last year, joins the Hun English faculty after spending the winter and spring teaching in California. Mr. Myslik is a graduate of Princeton University.

Cynthia Pendleton will assume the post of Assistant Dean of Students, joining the resident Hun faculty and teaching in the English department. Her most recent work was at the Gunston School in Maryland. She is a graduate of Skidmore College.

Gareth Roberts, a recent graduate of Oberlin College who taught in the summer school program at Choate-Rosemary Hall, joined the Hun summer faculty this summer and will now assume a resident teaching post in the mathematics department. Kimberly Ronco, a graduate of Guilford College in North Carolina who has worked at the Blue Ridge School in Dyke, Va., joins the College Counseling Office as a counselor.

Thomas Ryan, a recent graduate of Princeton University where he majored in psychology and was an All-Ivy football player, will teach in the middle school. Joseph Strednak, a graduate of Colgate University, will teach science. Mr. Strednak's most recent experience is in commercial scientific research.

International students arrived on campus for registration and orientation on August 27. Faculty orientation and opening faculty meetings take place this week, with student registration on Thursday and Friday. Classes begin Wednesday, September 9.

New Science Wing Under Way at Stuart

Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart will open on Tuesday for its 29th year.

This year promises to be exciting since faculty and students will be able to observe the progress of construction for a new wing that began on August 11. The new wing will include three science labs that have been donated by area foundations: The Maria Sklodowska Curie Physics Laboratory donated by the Barbara Piasecka Johnson Foundation, The Dean Mathey Chemistry Laboratory donated by the Bunbury Company, and The J. Seward Johnson, Sr. Biology Laboratory, a gift of the J. Seward Johnson Charitable Trusts. In addition to the science funding, a $50,000 grant was recently awarded Stuart by the J. Seward Johnson Charitable Trusts for assistance to financially disadvantaged students.

One hundred new pupils are among the 450 students enrolled this year. They have come from more than 40 New Jersey and Pennsylvania communities to attend classes which include preschool through 12th grade. Lower school has 73 new students; Middle School 11; and Upper School 15. Thirteen of the new upper school students will become members of the freshman class. With the exception of 27 boys in the preschool which contains 70 3- and 4-year-old children, all Stuart students are girls.

Newcomers to Stuart's 100 member faculty and staff include Rowena Bonoan, Harvard University (A.B.), Director of Student Life; Barbara Burke, Dickinson College (B.S.), science and mathematics; Arlene Graper, Montclair State College (B.A. and M.A.), mathematics; Amy McCormick, Dartmouth College (B.A.), Princeton Theological Seminary (M.Div.), religion; Kathleen Michalski, Lower School Administrative Assistant; Emanuella Pinals, State University of New York (B.S.), Assistant Librarian; Jeanne Silady, Trenton State College (B.A.), Rutgers University (M.L.S.), Lower School Librarian (1st trimester); Linda Stewart, Hood College (B.A.), Computer Coordinator.

SCIENCE AT STUART will get a big boost when the new wing is completed. Meanwhile, Pegi Curtin, Sabrina Lupero and Alma Moxon conduct an experiment as science teacher Anne Soos watches.

Several faculty members attended enrichment programs during the summer including the Walter Brueggemann Pentateuch class at Boston College; Maine photographic workshops; "Literature By and About Women" at Carnegie Mellon; Literature Based Reading/Writing Instruction Throughout Curriculum at Rutgers; Library Automation for School Librarians and the National Humanities Center's summer institute for high school English teachers.

Faculty members return to Stuart on Saturday for two days of in-service meetings which include a half-day retreat conducted by Rev. Patrick Connor, SVD, school chaplain. Class parties, ninth-grade overnight orientation and peer leadership meetings are held before students return for the official start of classes on Tuesday.

Princeton Junior School Has Five New Teachers

Princeton Junior School, a small independent school for ages 2½ through grade four, is starting its 10th year this year.

The school is housed in two area churches: grades one through four are located in Christ Congregation and the younger children are in the Unitarian Church. However, Princeton Junior School is looking ahead to building a school of its own on a tract of land at the corner of Route 206 and Fackler Road in Lawrenceville.

According to Juliana Cuyler McIntyre, the founding headmistress, Princeton Junior School will have five new teachers. Jean Becette is the new art teacher, Marian Ferrara will teach science and Sandra Godfrey will teach second grade. Phyllis Boulton will be the new assistant teacher in first grade, while Susan Metterfield is the new assistant teacher for the 4-year-olds.

The curriculum at every level includes math, language development, science, geography, history, art, music drama and physical exercise. The school incorporates the Mason Early Education Foundation programs. This fall, William McCleery, author and playwright, will teach a new course, "Writing Out Loud," to children in grades three and four.

Princeton Junior School is available to children from a wide range of social and economic backgrounds because of its commitment to a low tuition. The school does not discriminate against race, color or creed and is an equal opportunity employer.

For more information call 924-8126.

THE CONFERENCE PLAN, using oval tables for no more than 12 students, was devised for The Lawrenceville School — and also for Exeter and Andover — by Edward Harkness who provided the tables in 1936. Harkness tables are used at Lawrenceville in all classrooms except math and science.

The Lawrenceville School Begins Its 182rd Year

The Lawrenceville School will begin its 183rd academic year at full enrollment with 740 students in grades eight to 12 (400 boys, 340 girls) including 200 day students from the Princeton/Trenton/Bucks County area.

Boarding students come from 39 states and 25 foreign countries, including Russia, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Taiwan, Great Britain, France, Venezuela, Sweden and Germany. This year, there will be 220 new students who were chosen from more than 1000 applicants.

Thirty percent of all students at Lawrenceville receive financial aid amounting to a total of $2½ million. This year for the first time, the School will have a Native American scholar, a Navaho from New Mexico. Other recent admissions programs include Eastern European scholars (this year from Czechoslovakia) and a Muslim scholar from Afghanistan.

A new artist in residence program in English will begin during the fall and winter terms, and an artist in residence in music will work with students in the spring term. The Capstone Lecture series, which in its first year featured such speakers as Cornell West of Princeton University, Andrea Dworkin, feminist lawyer, and David Foreman, environmentalist, will continue.

The Capstone Lectures, which will be announced at a later date, will be open to the public. Congressman Tom McMillan of Kentucky, Rhodes Scholar and NBA baskehall star, will address the students just before election day.

School opens officially when Head Master Josiah Bunting III, beginning his sixth year at Lawrenceville, addresses faculty and students at Convocation on Sunday, September 13. Jan Strout, director of the Women's Center of Princeton University, will address the faculty on Faculty Day, September 8.

New Classroom Wing For Friends Sixth Year

Princeton Friends School, Quaker Road, will begin its sixth year of operation with 78 students and 12 faculty members.

The school has just completed renovations to its new first and second grade wing, which will house 24 students this year. The new classrooms have been redesigned to accommodate an integrated curriculum.

This year, the entire school curriculum will be organized around the central study theme of childhood. In science, the children will study the human body and conduct experiments that relate to human development. Social studies will focus on the life of children in various countries — the games they play, the work they do and the way their families are organized.

In addition, Princeton Friends is launching its first After School Program, which will be headed by Rip Pellaton, former director of the YMCA MASH after school program. The program will be offered every school day until 6 and on school holidays as well. The schedule will include time for free play and structured activities such as crafts, drama and organized games.

In addition, mini-courses will be taught by the After School program staff and parents and community resource people for the first three weeks of each month.

REDESIGNED CLASSROOMS: Princeton Friends School teachers Maris Cutting, left, and Jenny King, look over some of the new teaching tools that will be used in this year's curriculum.

Waldorf School Teacher Begins 1st Grade Anew

Ekkehard Heyder will be starting the first grade over for the fifth time this September. A slow learner? No. Mr. Heyder is a Waldorf school teacher.

Waldorf is an international school system in which grade school teachers customarily take responsibility for a class full of first graders and then move on with them through the eighth grade. Mr. Heyder's career with the Waldorf school movement began when he was offered a place in the 10th grade class at the Waldorf School in Hannover, Germany in 1955.

After leaving the Waldorf School he received a degree in education at the Teacher's College in Hessen, Germany. He came to the United States to teach briefly at the University of Oklahoma, Norman, where he met and married his wife, Betty. He returned to Germany to complete his studies and begin work in a public school for handicapped children. He first faced a Waldorf first grade class of his own in 1964 in the university town of Strassburg.

In 1969, Mr. Heyder, then with three children of his own, moved to the Hibernia Waldorf School in the Ruhr area of Germany, where during the ensuing 16 years he took two groups of children from the first through eighth grade. In July of 1985, following a year's sabbatical leave working with handicapped and learning disabled children, Mr. Heyder came to Princeton to help found the Waldorf grade school here. That first class graduated in June. On September 8 Mr. Heyder will welcome a new generation of 6-year-olds to the Waldorf School of Princeton.

The concept of a class having the same class teacher for eight years is one of the unique elements of Waldorf education. Special subject teachers — students are taught two foreign languages, for example, from the first grade on — take the children for an increasing amount of time each day as the grades progress.

Open Air's Season Ends with Sell-Out Crowd At Spirited & Lively "Pirates of Penzance"

Night drew cold on the pirates, fair maidens, and daft policemen at Washington's Crossing this past weekend, but the chilly weather did not daunt a standing-room-only crowd who came to see the closing night of Princeton Opera Association's performance of The Pirates of Penzance. This production opened the weekend of August 20, and by its closing night, news had no doubt spread of its spirited and lively entertainment.

The music of these popular Arthur Sullivan and W.S. Gilbert Victorian frolics is at times as complex as a Mozart opera, so it is not surprising that the Princeton Opera Association looked to classically-trained singers for their cast. Many of the vocal leads were trained at Westminster Choir College, and the large pit orchestra had the instrumentation and training to switch gears at intermission if they wished and provide the audience with a little Stravinsky or Haydn. Despite the electronic challenges of miking an orchestra of this size, Steve Ryan's instrumental ensemble sounded well-blended and on target for most of the evening.

The Pirates of Penzance also requires a great number of men in the chorus, enough to split into pirates and policemen in the second act. Princeton Opera seemed to have had no trouble recruiting enough robust sounding men for these parts, with a number of notable smaller roles. Among those in smaller roles who stood out were Mark Cotton as the Sergeant of Police and Vinny Genna as the Pirate King, who showed admirable skill in singing while swinging on a rope over the orchestra and part of the audience.

However, The Pirates of Penzance is primarily about Frederick and Mabel, played in this production by Timothy Carpenter and Alice Vail. Both of these individuals are graduates of Westminster Choir College, and both showed the ability to handle the more dramatic elements of this music. Ms. Vail got off to a bit of a slow start in her first encounter with Frederick, but by "Poor Wandering One" had settled into an appealing and lyrical vocal style. Ms. Vail also shone in the tricky ensemble numbers of the second act.

Mr. Carpenter, as Frederick, managed well his musically dramatic moments, such as the interaction with his hapless nurse, Ruth, but electronic miking sometimes does funny things to operatic voices, and there were times when the combination of the two was not pleasant to hear. Despite these vocal problems, Mr. Carpenter did portray a sympathetic hero to Ms. Vail's Mabel.

Mezzo soprano roles in Gilbert & Sullivan have always been a vocal bugaboo because of their low ranges and quirky registers. As Ruth, Lynn Springer demonstrated a very pleasing vocal quality and worked out her few glitches in the upper register by the second act.

The most recognizable character in Pirates of Penzance may well be the Major General, who has the distinction of singing the operetta's best-known number, "I Am the Very Model of a Modern Major General." This role can be portrayed in any number of comedic manners. For this production, director Lori Bales chose to present the general (played by Charles Walker) as if Colonel Klink had joined Her Majesty's Secret Service. With tassled umbrella in hand, this Major General frolicked on stage over his gaggle of daughters in distinctively bumbling upper-crust manner, but obviously took himself deadly seriously.

All of these vocal leads were backed up by exceptional ensembles of choristers. For such a small group of "daughters," the women's ensemble presented a lovely sound, and the policemen, led by the rich bass voice of Mr. Cotton, had clearly been very well trained.

The Pirates of Penzance closes the season for Washington Crossing's Open Air Theatre. As the lack of seats for the overflowing audience on Saturday night attested, another season of outdoor theater presentations had been a success.

'92 Tiger Football Similar to '89 Champions in Talent And Coaching Staff Hoping for Similar November Finish

(This is the second of three articles on the prospects for the Princeton football team).

Princeton football coach Steve Tosches led his Tigers to an 8-2 record last year, but if he had to choose, he'd rather watch a repeat of 1989's 7-2-1 season which ended with an Ivy title instead.

And with the talent available on both sides of the ball, Tosches and his staff will be facing the same set of challenges.

"It's very similar to 1989," Tosches says. "We have got to play real good defense. We have to keep ourselves in ball games. We have to keep the score close, to complement the style of offense we're going to play. It's going to be conservative, but that's how you win championships.

"You go through the NCAA, the NFL, it's your conservative offenses, the people who protect the football, who grind out the clock, who win. We're not going to give the ball to the fullback on every play, we're not talking about that, but rather a guarded offense, not taking a lot of chances, not throwing the ball 65 times. That's what wins football games."

Tosches says statistics are for losers, but the most important defensive statistic, points allowed, bears him out. In 1989, the Orange and Black allowed just 80 in the league games. That's the fewest since 74 in 1969, and guess who won the title that year also?

So this team will be built around a solid defense that, especially in the early games, hopes to give the offense a chance to grind out points slowly, rather than play catch-up. Following is a look at the personnel returning on both units.

Linebacking Corps Strong

Defense has seven starters back, one more than 1989, and the strength is in the linebackers, another similarity with three years ago. At 6'3, 235-lbs, senior captain Aaron Harris is a dominating force at inside linebacker, and the team's leading tackler.

His classmate Gene DeMorat, another returning starter on the inside, was second in tackles in '91 and registered five sacks. Chris Mallette was back-up to captain Jim Freeman, but saw plenty of action the past two years when Freeman was injured.

QUARTERBACK QUESTION MARKS: Either Joel Foote (left) or Cam Scholvin should emerge as the starting quarterback against Cornell, September 19. Three sophomores are also vying for the job.

SPORTS

Seniors Rob Dykes and juniors Shawn Colo and David Getson add depth to the linebackers. Tosches feels no one is as good as Franco Pagnanelli individually, but collectively this group has the potential to be as good as the '89 crew.

The line is Tosches' biggest concern for the defense. "That's where graduation really wiped us," he says. "There were five kids, Jonas Sheehan, Leon Newsome, Tommy Ryan, Mark Johnson and Mike Zampardi, who were in the two-deep. They weren't all starters, but they all played in all 10 games on rotations."

Tosches can count on two solid junior returnees, end Brian Kazan (6'2, 220) and tackle Reggie Harris, (6-0, 230), who both earned all-Ivy recognition in their first year of varsity ball. Kazan, a second-team selection, topped the squad with 15 sacks. Harris, the Pink Baker award winner on the freshman team, finished as the team's third leading tackler.

Classmate Jim Renna (6'1, 240) who hails from West Windsor will move into the starting role at the other tackle position after seeing a good deal of playing time as a back-up. Senior Joel Zayacheck (6'3, 230) is also expected to see time in the rotation at tackle.

"We need some guys really to come along," Tosches says. "Because there, again, just the nature of that position, you're not going to line up for 10 games with four of the same kids. They just get too beat up.

"That's where we need sophomores, and we think there are some decent kids there, but they have to come through and play football for us. Jess Urriola (6'2, 230) had a good freshman year, Mike Christoph (6'2, 210) is another."

Looking at his defensive backs, Tosches is more confident. "Our secondary has a chance to be really, really good," he points out. "You have Keith Ducker [senior, strong safety], Brad Reed [senior, cornerback] and Brian Mangene [junior, cornerback], who were all starters a year ago. We just have to fit that fourth piece in, and there again, we feel like we have some possibilities.

"We had a lot of injuries back there last year [Marvin Williams was out for six games], so we had to do a tremendous juggling act, [Princeton High graduate] David Kahn is going to be in the picture somewhere. We have a younger kid, Jonathan Reid, coming up from the freshman team, who we think is really loaded with talent. You pretty much go into every year needing about six defensive backs, and we aim to make them almost interchangeable with the positions."

Finding a punter to replace Jason Scott will be one more job for the defense. Scott was somewhat erratic with his punts early on, but never had one blocked, and actually finished third in the league in yards per punt.

"We're hoping Matt Golden can do the job," Tosches says. "He has a strong leg. He was very mechanical a year ago; I'm just hoping that is something he has really improved upon.

One statistic from last year that concerns Tosches is the net punting yardage. "Our net after the return was only 29 yards. So every time we punted, we only pushed that defense back an average of 29 yards, and yet we went 8-2.

Quarterback a Question

As it was in '89, the quarterback spot is wide open, and the man who wins the job will throw his first varsity pass against Cornell September 19 in Ithaca.

That's what Joel Sharp had to do as an untested junior three years ago in Hanover, and one of his first few was a 45-yard bomb to Tommy Haan that set up Princeton's second touchdown in a 20-14 triumph. Sharp never looked back, and neither did the Tigers.

He'll never be talked about in the same breath as some of the great passers who played for Princeton, but he has the championship ring. Ron Beible, Bob Holly, Doug Butler, Jason Garrett, all set records, but couldn't compensate for other weaknesses on their teams.

This fall, Tosches will be choosing from a pair of good-sized juniors, Joel Foote (6'4, 200) and Cam Scholvin (6'3, 185), and he would like to take part of each one for his '92 quarterback. Foote was the leading passer on the '90 freshman team, completing 40 of 81 passes for 702 yards and 10 touchdowns, while Scholvin, who saw considerably less action, hit four of 19 for 103 yards.

"If Foote wins the job, it's just because of his confidence," Tosches says. That's what I think the players see in him right now, He's not a runner, doesn't necessarily have a gun for an arm. He's not going to knock you over with his physical abilities. He's just going to do it with his poise, his handling of the situation. He's a calm, cool kid. From what I'm seeing right now, he's a gamer."

"Cam Scholvin is loaded with raw talent. There's a kid who can throw a ball through a wall. He has a gun for an arm, but he has to prove he can handle the situation."

Tosches will hope to be able to make a decision before the week of the Cornell game, so the starter can get the necessary work in practice. Three sophomores — Linton Haley, Brett Huckelbridge and Tom McInerney have a long-shot chance at beating out Foote and Scholvin.

Running Backs Ready

There are no such questions to be answered at running back. Junior Keith Elias and senior Erick Hamilton combined for 1,474 yards (902 by Elias) rushing, 272 in receiving and 20 touchdowns. Last year, Elias had to prove himself, and alternated with Hamilton through the first eight games. He'll be the fulltime this fall, with Hamilton ready to give him a breather.

The key to the running attack will be to get Elias through the line and into opposing backfields, forcing defensive backs to come up and make tackles. When they have to concentrate on the run, the pass will obviously be effective.

"We feel pretty good about our fullbacks," Tosches says, referring to junior Peter Bailey and senior Doug Massick, both of whom have plenty of game experience. At 6-2, 215, Bailey will be the starter, with Massick rotated in.

The good news for the passing game is that an experienced receiving corps awaits the new quarterback. Senior split end Michael Lerch gained national recognition with his 370 receiving yards in the Brown game, but he had already made his mark as one of the team's most valuable players. One of five unanimous first-team all-Ivy players last year, Lerch already ranks fourth in career receiving yardage here. His 4.39 speed (for 40 yards) is the best on the team.

Tosches, however, likes to point out how Lerch excels in other areas. "He makes the majority of the tackles on the kickoff, he has blocked about eight PATs and field goals the last two years. His kickoff returns are big. The kid does so much it's unbelievable."

With Lerch drawing most of the attention from opposing secondaries, senior Steve Tufillaro could have a big year. He saw plenty of action his sophomore year, and started all last season. "He'll go very unnoticed, because of Michael on the other side," Tosches says. "But, he's a good, steady football player."

Two sophomores have caught Tosches' attention as back-ups. Marc Ross and David Scoggin are just a step or two behind Lerch in speed, and could see action ahead of juniors Matt Birell and Kyle Weston.

Another veteran returns at tight end. Senior Chris Beiswenger grabbed the role of starter from Mike McCloskey mid-way through last season, and turned out to be "a real pleasant surprise" in Tosches' words. "If he can just continue going, he can have a really nice senior year for himself," Tosches adds.

Full Recovery for Theiss?

The line lost just one of five starters, guard Todd Crockett, to graduation, hut Tosches is keeping his fingers crossed that senior right tackle Chris Theiss stays healthy. He's coming hack from an operation on a knee injury that kept him out of the final two games last season. Still, he was named to the second all-Ivy unit.

"That kid had major reconstruction (on his knee) last Novemher. You never know, sometimes that's a nine-month thing; some guys never regain [everything]. You have to wait and see.

"If he's healthy, he's a dominant football player, the best offensive lineman this league has seen in a long time.

Lining up at guard next to Theiss will be senior J.C. Stilley. Junior Ian Lombard, who moved into the starting role midway through last season, will return at center. Classmates Chris Cyterski and Scott Miller shared time as the starter at left tackle, with Cyterski moving to the right side after Theiss' injury.

"We have some younger kids moving up, who might move into the picture, like sophomore Carl Teter," Tosches says. At 6'6, 260, he's the biggest player on the team.

"We may do some juggling here to get the best five people on the field," Tosches says. "It will be like musical chairs, but we are happy with the players we have to work with. One of the biggest questions is the health of Lombard. He had both shoulders scoped."

Junior Ben Ertischek will hope to become more reliable in the place-kicking duties. Backing up Jason Scott, he hit his only field goal attempt from 40 yards out, but was just four of nine on extra-point attempts. Junior Jeff Hogg will challenge Ertischek on both placements and kickoffs.

Tosches and his staff have three weeks to answer the questions, and fit the pieces together. If this can be done successfully, there's enough talent to make a strong bid for the Ivy title.

Next week, we'll see how Princeton stacks up against the other seven Ivy teams, and the three non-league opponents.

Saturday Scrimmage Set for Football Team

Princeton foothall fans who will be around this Labor Day weekend, can catch an early look at the team Saturday afternoon in Palmer Stadium.

The Tigers will scrimmage Montclair State, beginning at 1 p.m. Quarterbacks Joel Foote and Cam Schlovin are both expected to see action in their battle for the starting quarterback joh.

Montclair State is one of the hetter Division III teams, hut probahly a notch or so below the calihre of the teams the Orange and Black will face this fall. However it will have the advantage of a couple of extra weeks of pre-scason practice, while Princeton will only have been In pads for three days.

When the two teams met a year ago in a pre-season test, Old Nassau outscored the visitors, 13-3.

PHS Football Shooting for Third Bid to State Playoffs, But Little Tigers Will Have to Do It without Reynolds

Two questions immediately come to the forefront concerning the 1992 Princeton High football team.

With the season's opener at Nottingham just over two weeks away, fans of the Little Tigers will be wondering if Princeton High will be able to qualify for the Group 2 state competition for an unprecedented third year in a row. Also on their minds, certainly, will be the extent of the effect of the revelation that Bram Reynolds has opted not to come out for football this year, preferring to concentrate all his talent on basketball.

So exceptional was the 6-3, 190-pound Reynolds that he was a starter two years ago as a freshman.

Reynolds did it all. He was a sure-handed end, a tailback when called on to help the offense, a rock on defense as a linebacker and the team's kickoff kicker. His potential as an impact player for the Little Tigers for the next two years was without limit.

PHS coach Keith Wadsworth has an answer for both: Kirk Webber and the "three-peat" question is premature. Webber, a 6-3½, 214-pound sophomore, who did not transfer to Peddie or to Pennington School as had been feared, will more than fill the hole left by Reynolds, Wadsworth believes. "He has an unbelievable foot (he's kicking off into the end zone), he's bigger than Bram, he's a good receiver (he'll be a tight end), and he has great hands."

As for the question about being able to repeat, Wadsworth admits that while the thought is in the back of his mind, it is too early to consider. "We want to try to stay focused; we don't want to look that far ahead," he said.

RUNNING BACKS: Tailback Marquis Johnson (left) and fullback Abel Kahn will be the featured running backs this fall on the Princeton High football team.

Goal Is Consistency

Instead, Wadsworth's early goal is to try to be more consistent and not peak too soon, as his Little Tigers have done the previous two seasons. Said he, "If we win at the start of the season, we want to stay that way at the end of the season."

Two years ago, at his first crack at being a head coach, Wadsworth surprised a lot of fans and maybe even himself by going 5-0 in his first five games. The team trailed off, losing four of its next five, however, including a first-round loss to Somerville in the state competition.

Last year, the Blue and White got off to a 4-0 start, but after tying Hamilton it sputtered. It was routed, 30-0, by town rival Hun in its last regular season start before being blanked again, 10-0, by Holmdel in the first round in the states. Injuries to key players were a major factor for the decline.

Wadsworth believes there will be no carry-over from last year's disappointing ending, but lack of depth, especially on the line, will be a concern again this fall. Currently, the squad numbers 48, including freshmen.

For the present, Wadsworth is content to say the players are enthusiastic. He has a good mix, he adds, of senior and junior candidates and he is looking forward to the start of the season. The team was scheduled to scrimmage Hamilton earlier this week. On Saturday, it will host South Hunterdon in a second scrimmage and it will also scrimmage New Brunswick the following Saturday before the opener against Nottingham on the 19th.

Wadsworth lost 12 seniors from last year's 6-3-1 team, including Nixon Grant, one of the county's premier ground gainers who scored 10 TDs. There has been no infusion of talent in the way of transfer or new students.

"For the past two years we have worked with what we bad and we were successful," noted Wadsworth. "So the program must be doing something right." Aside from the usual hard work and determination, there will be no dramatic changes.

Backfield Talent

This week, TOWN TOPICS will look at the backfield candidates and then discuss the line the following week.

The backfield talent is impressive. There will be no rookie starters. At quarterback, junior Brendan Branon returns after leading the team last year. Branon attended a quarterback camp this summer, reports Wadsworth, and has improved.

"He has a great sense of the game. His passing has a nice snap; he passes a tight spiral. He has confidence now that he is a year older; he knows the program." Branon connected for six TD passes last year and scored one rushing.

Working as backups are senior Terry Wooding and junior Kevin Scudder

At tailback is another blue chipper, junior Mnrquis Johnson. The 5-11½, 160-pound Johnson was overshadowed last year by Grant's exploits, but by the end of the season, noted Wadsworth, "he was averaging eight yards a carry. He has great lateral movement.

"Where for Nixon the holes had to be made, Marquis makes his own holes. A big difference." Johnson scored five times last year, including a 72-yard punt return in the opener and a 66-yard return against McCorristin.

Larry McEwen, a 6-2, 158-pound senior, "tall and quick," is backup.

At slot back in his Power I formation, Wadsworth has slotted junior Ricky Vernon. Small at 5-9, 155, Vernon made his mark last year as a defensive back and standout tackler. "If he keeps focused, he'll do well," predicted Wadsworth. "He has great speed and he is not afraid to hit."

Sophomore Brandon McEwen, who has great speed and a great attitude, says Wadsworth, will serve as backup for Vernon.

Solid at Fullback

Senior Abel Kahn and junior Calvin Wilson are the fullback candidates, described by Wadsworth as "two, hard-nosed kids." Kahn, like Vernon, was an outstanding defensive player and has worked hard in the off season this year, said Wadsworth, lifting weights with his brother, who is a member of the Princeton University team.

WILL NOT RETURN: Bram Reynolds, a sophomore standout last year, has elected not to return to the PHS football team this season.

Kahn, reported Wadsworth, had the most tackles of any member on last year's team — 60 solo tackles from his linebacker position. As a fullback and linebacker, Kahn plays the toughest two positions on the field, he said.

"He never complains, he never complains he is hurt. He did not receive the recognition he deserved," insisted Wadsworth.

Wilson sat out his sophomore year. Though smaller than the 5-10½, 181-pound Kahn, he is like Kahn in that he is not afraid to hit, says Wadsworth.

"I was impressed with the way Calvin played his freshman year. Give him the ball and he'd run 15 yards. He has the speed and he's not afraid to pop somebody."

Fulfillment, Not Wins Goal of PHS's Celestin

High school soccer is highly — some would say, brutally — competitive in Mercer County. Just ask Princeton High coach Ron Celestin.

"There's always been that facet of playing teams a little better than we are," commented Celestin. "You can't escape the competition. It's there. You have to be able to rise to the occasion and shock a few teams.

PHS SOCCER CAPTAIN: Senior Jeff Sprague, a fullbeck and sweeper, will ceptain the Princeton High boys soccer team this fall.

"You just can't be competitive," continued Celestin. "You have to win. We've been competitive but it hasn't produced any wins."

It's been a long time since the Little Tigers have won more games than they've lost and last year was no exception: two wins, three ties and 14 losses. Although Celestin was quick to point out that PHS over the years has had its share of good games against the top teams in the County.

As far as the upcoming season, which opens next Monday, the 14th, against Hamilton, Celestin commented, "As a coach, you always want to be optimistic. We have a number of kids returning with varsity experience so, obviously, we're hoping to do well.

"We have the numbers to work with; it's a matter of getting them to fit in with the style we play and to produce."

Winning, however, is not his overriding goal says Celestin, for whom soccer has played a major role all his life. Even when Celestin was a four-year player for PHS in 1976-79 and probably the most talented player ever to perform for the Blue and White, winning seasons were hard to come by. Perennial powers such as Lawrence, Steinert, Notre Dame, Ewing and Hopewell were always formidable teams to overcome. That facet that PHS has constantly faced.

"I want to teach them the way the game of soccer should be played. That's what I believe in," said Celestin. "To get a sense of appreciation for the game of soccer. We get so caught up in scores."

"I'm hoping they will have a sense of fulfillment for themselves. They come to practice, they work hard. I hope they feel they've accomplished something. The same for games.

"You don't just forfeit. You go out and do the best you can. That's all you can do."

Great Attitude So Far

Practices at the Valley Road School field have been good, reported Celestin. "The attitude has been great so far. We're giving them all they can handle in the way of physical conditioning and tactics. We're providing a lot of variations."

The Little Tigers have one scrimmage scheduled for next Friday against newcomer Metuchen. "We going out of our area to see what's out there," said Celestin.

Again, because of budget constraints, Celestin has no assistant to help him with the varsity. But Drew Wartenburg, captain of the 1988 PHS team his senior year and a four-year player at Wesleyan University in Connecticut, is coaching the freshman and jayvee players.

Jeff Sprague, a fullback and sweeper, will captain the team this year and heads a list of returning seniors. Senior Alex Klein will be goalie.

Other seniors include fullbacks Michael Goldberg and Josh Kanter and forward/middies Tim Brant and Grant Cooper. Erick Santizo (six goals) is one of three juniors who will alternate between forward and midfield. Forward Ben Plummer and middy Jose Alvardo also return but another junior who was making marked progress, Matt Adler, had enrolled in another school.

Two sophomores expected to see action are forward Richard Osmer and middy Brian Kruegel.

Concord Wins Softball Playoff

Defending champion Concord Group won the playoff championship of the Princeton Recreation Softball League last week by edging Ivy Inn, 3-2, in the series' fifth and deciding game.

Trailing 2-1 entering the bottom of the sixth, Concord, which also won the regular season title, scored two runs on three hits for its narrow win.

Jack Volz led off with a single and then scored the tying run when Ivy's Greg Hammer allowed Frank Whittaker's single to right center get by him. Whittaker moved to third on the error and then scored the winning run on Gregg Smith's single.

Ivy Inn had taken a one-run lead in the first on an error and Dave Shillaber's hit. It increased its lead to 2-0 in the third when Hammer singled and Bob Zinsmeister followed with a triple.

Mike Santoro was the winning pitcher, outdueling Ivy Inn's Mario DeVincenzi.

Seven Seniors Return To PHS Girls' Soccer

From a team that finished 7-9-3 last year, third-year Princeton High girls' soccer coach Greg Hand lost seven seniors Balancing that loss, however, is the return of seven veteran players, now seniors, a few blue-chip underclassmen and, says Hand, "the largest, most enthusiastic, most skilled group from the John Witherspoon School I've seen in five years. We have at least a dozen freshman players so the program is in good shape — as far as the future is concerned."

The freshman presence is probably a year away. As he prepares for the start of this season, which will open Monday, September 14, when the Little Tigers host Hamilton, Hand acknowledged, when asked what he felt the outlook was, "We're always hoping to do better. I think I have some players who might be able to make it possible."

Added Hand, "The longer I coach, the more I subscribe to the belief that the only thing we can do on the field is to do our best." Dedication and intensity of play on the field for all 80 minutes is, for Hand, a given.

Every possible effort, he assured, would be made by the players to do their best. "Beyond that commitment, there is nothing we can do. If we do improve, we will have earned it; if our record stays the same, they can still be proud that no effort was spared to be a winning team."

The schedule will not make it easy to improve. Hand noted that he has to play two state champions twice this fall — Hopewell Valley and Ewing, the latter dropping down from a Group 3 to Group 2 school.

Essentially, it is the same schedule, observed Hand. "We know the teams we're playing — they're all just good soccer schools up and down the schedule. Finally, at this point, people can look at this area and say it has three or four of the strongest girls' soccer teams in the state.

"We're fortunate to be playing in that company. Obviously, it's a strong challenge to compete with and beat these teams."

Strongest Players Return

Although Hand lost seven players to graduation, including co-captains Marcie Procaccini and Carin Algava, he feels the group returning "is perhaps the strongest part of our starting unit — so we have an experienced nucleus, particularly in the backfield and at keeper."

Two seniors, Shannon Kocb and Lauren Wedam, will share the goal tending duties. Both are experienced, talented keepers and will give the Little Tigers a strong defense in goal.

Myke Drayer, a three-year starter, will play sweeper. "She's very strong in fundamentals," said Hand. Ailey Penningroth, another three-year veteran, will be stopper. "The best marking player we have," says Hand. "Very tenacious. Exceptional endurance." The two seniors will co-captain the team.

SWEEPER AND STOPPER: Myke Drayer (left) is sweeper and Ailey Penningroth is stopper on the Princeton High girls soccer team. The two seniors are co-captains of the team.

Senior fullback Tara Tibbott is another backfield player who will try to fill the big hole created with the graduation of Ruth Williams, and halfback Leigh Koppel, a sophomore transfer from South Brunswick, should also contribute, says Hand.

Senior Ariel Goettinger will return to anchor the midfield, where Hand reports that he is looking for someone to control the play. Sophomore Cathy Gilbert, who scored five goals as a freshman, was a great center halfback last year, commented Hand, "but she is probably a better natural striker." Gilbert has spent the summer playing with some high-caliber traveling teams, he said.

There are no more midfield returnees but some candidates this year include senior Christa Stefanchik, sophomore Suzannah Stout and freshman Marion Cavanaugh, the last one of the bevy of promising freshmen on the squad.

String at Both Wings

The forward line will be strong at both ends where senior Cathy Neuger (12 goals last year) will be at right wing and junior Cathy Gordon will anchor the left side. One of the interior line players will be Koch, who always bolsters the line with her play when not in goal.

"There's not a whole lot of depth in the line so, again, I'm looking for some players," said Hand.

Soccer Tryout Saturday

There will be tryouts for the Princeton Soccer Association-sponsored girls' soccer traveling team on Saturday from 10 till noon at Riverside School. All girls born between August 1, 1981 and July 31, 1982 are eligible. Players do not have to live in Princeton, but must play in the Princeton house league program Saturday mornings. Traveling team games are held Sunday afternoons in the spring and fall. For more information, call 924-9150 (evenings and weekends).

Ficarro's Will Compete In Labor Day Tourney

The Princeton-based Steve Ficarro's Auto Body softball team will compete this Labor Day weekend in the United States Slo-pitch Softball Association's Eastern Region Class B Championship Tournment in Toms River.

In past years, participation in this USSSA tournament has taken Ficarro's to Cincinnati, Boston and Wilmington, N.C. Ficarro's best showing was in 1986 when the tournament was held in Mercer County and the team finisbed fifth.

This year, 35 teams from nine states will compete. Ficarro's opening round game will be Saturday at 11 at Winding River Park. Overall this season, Ficarro's was 30-10 and it captured the regular season title in the Mercer County Women's League.

Pettoranello

Mr. Raucci had been studying at Juilliard this summer when the Italian group visited in July, and had met some of the Princetonians when they came to New York for a day trip with the Italians. The Mozart concert was well attended and well received.

The group ate lunch that day at the Hospital in Isernia, but according to Eleanor Pinelli of Mountain Avenue, "We ate four times in four hours." Elaborate pastries, cookies, sandwiches and meats were set out for them in each of the locations visited. Ms. Pinelli and her sister Anna decided only two weeks before leaving to join the group, and were so happy they did.

"The hospitality that they showed us all as part of the group was wonderful. We were glad to be part of that." She hadn't been back in nine years, and was struck by the progress and improvement made since that time.

On Wednesday, a tour of the nearby city of Agnone was on tap, where the group visited the Marinelli bell factory, oldest bell foundry in Europe. One of the bells hanging in the church of Pettoranello was cast at Marinelli, and donated by Princetonians Antonio Pirone and Dominic Tomasi.

Continuing on to Scapoli, another town, the group visited a bagpipe factory, where Mayor Woodbridge was presented with one of the instruments. "If everyone buys a lottery ticket, I promise to play the bagpipes," he said in reference to the drawing to be held later in the week for a car, a fur coat and a bicycle. "If everyone buys two lottery tickets, I promise not to play the bagpipes."

Shift to Modern Italy

With the evening's events came a 180-degree shift to modern day Italy. Nino Pezzella, an Italian furrier with seven shops all over Italy, including one in Pettoranello, proudly displayed his exclusive designs.

While Italian models paraded the latest fur fashions down a specially built runway, American rock music and Italian pop music blared from large speakers, and special smoke effects added mystique.

After the fashion show, Mr. Pezzella whisked a group of Princetonians off to a "cocktail" party at a nearby restaurant, "Le Cascate," or "The Waterfalls." Set far back in a vineyard, the restaurant sprawled along stone walkways and patios with pergolas and waterfalls in abundance.

Mr. Pezzella hosted what might have been considered dinner, rather than cocktails: tables laden with cold meats and cheeses, whole roast pig, vegetables, desserts and of course, a variety of wines.

The next day's activities were centered in Isernia, a city of more than 20,000 people, located ten minutes by car from Pettoranello. A visit to the Municipal Library took the group to a special room housing rare books.

Various antique manuscripts, dating from 1500 A.D., with handcolored paintings, a Hebrew bible from 1400 A.D., and a parchment book from the 1300's given by the King of Naples, were among the treasures displayed for the group.

At the Museo Nazionale, visitors saw an art show demonstrating the talents of high school age students at a technical institute. Finely crafted examples of their work were showcased in the fields of architecture, ceramics, jewelry making, interior design, printmaking and textile design. Some of the work was done by students of Dino Mercante, a teacher at the Institute of Art, and a brother-in-law of Adele and Dominic Tamasi of Skillman.

Key to the City

At that evening's official dinner, held at the Hotel Europa, a multi-course banquet was served, after which both Mayor Woodbridge and Mayor Paolino gave speeches, thanking everyone who had been involved in the program. Mayor Woodbridge also received the key to the city and a commemorative bell from the foundry in Agnone.

Former Mayor Kate Litvack and committeewoman Phyllis Marchand made their remarks in Italian, to the great pleasure of the crowd. Throughout the week, Mayor Woodbridge punctuated his presentations with a bit of Italian and by the end of the stay, had added quite a few new words to his Italian vocabulary. The American consulate, George White, who lives in Naples, drove up to attend the dinner and the next day's ceremonies.

The following morning, the Princeton contingent was met in Pettoranello at the base of the town by groups of folkloric dancers as well as by a fanfare from an Alpine band. The various visiting groups and townspeople marched in procession up the streets and through the Piazza Marconi to the local school house, where the official signing of the sister-city documents took place.

Immediately following was a celebratory mass, conducted by Bishop Andrea Gemma. It was a true sister-city celebration, involving people from both communities. Making it even more special were the various confirmations and first holy communions taking place that day. Two of the sponsors for the local confirmation candidates were residents of West Windsor and Skillman, Alberina Nini and Mireille Nini.

Amid the colorful ceremony set in the beautiful church, with music provided by a local choir and organ played by Rita Paolino, the mayor's daughter, Princeton resident Michael Prospero assisted the bishop as one of the altar boys. Mayor Woodbridge and his wife Karen, carried offerings of flowers and fruit to the altar with Mayor Paolino and his wife Enza.

Following the ceremony Mayor Paolino and his wife invited about 30 people to lunch at their home. The lunch was held in their garage, a converted stable. But a garage in Pettoranello is a far cry from a place to store fertilizer and insect spray.

The floors, covered in ceramic tile, and the walls, stuccoed and painted, looked pristine enough to house an art exhibit. In fact they did, and lunch was served with a backdrop of colorful impressionistic paintings by a local artist.

with participation requested by the Princeton contingent. They did not disappoint. Several Princeton residents took part in the wheelbarrow race, in which the person in the wheelbarrow guided a blindfolded partner through an obstacle course. Mayor Woodbridge and Pettoranello resident Tony Pinelli gave it a try, while onlookers cheered loudly.

But the best sports of all were Phyllis Marchand and Marjorie Carnevale, who were the first women ever to have participated (aside from 12-year-old Christina Prospero with her father Richard). They were splashed with water on their way through the course, but enjoyed the hilarious experience, as did the crowd.

"The reason we did it was we were asked to participate in the games. I had no idea I would be blindfolded and that we would be the only women. But it was fun and I will always remember the laughter we shared. It crosses all cultures," said Marjorie Carnevale.

Feast day all over Italy is August 15, and every town has some form of celebration. Pettoranello was no different, but this year it took on a grander scale. After a mass in the church, statues of the Virgin Mary and St. Rocco, the patron saint of Pettoranello, were hoisted on mens' shoulders and carried through the town.

The procession moved along the perimeter of the town, with the band playing and the townspeople marching along. Near the edge of town, the statues were turned toward the valley, and fireworks were set off. Even though it was daylight, the pyrotechnic display was quite a sight.

Lunch was held at individual family homes, as each Pettoranello family hosted a family from Princeton. Skillman resident Adele Tamasi echoed the sentiments of many when she said, "Their hospitality was overwhelming."

Even though she has gone back every year in the last three years to visit relatives, she said that this year was especially nice. "They really made a special bond and connected themselves to us."

Via Princetan

Later that afternoon, Via Princeton was inaugurated, and honorary citizenships were given out to Princeton residents, who were beginning to feel like part of one big Pettoranesi family. "When I go back to Princeton, I'm going to leave a little bit of my heart in Pettoranello," said Mayor Woodbridge, and most visitors felt the same way.

Many Princetonians left the following day for other destinations, although some remained to visit relatives or tour other sites, under less hectic circumstances. Everyone left feeling positive about the festivities.

"We hadn't been back in five years," said Mary Ann Tamasi of Harrison Street. "But we were happy to go back. We were treated very well and were impressed with all the activities planned." Her husband Sam is a brother of Enza Paolino, the mayor's wife, and Mr. Tamasi's father, 83 years old, still lives in Pettoranello. "We hope to get back again real soon."

Hopefully, the ties made during the visits between the two communities this summer will be the start of a series of exchanges in the future. Plans have already been made for Pettoranello's Dr. Florindo Pirone, who specializes in nuclear medicine, to attend and speak at a series of medical lectures in Princeton, and for Dr. Kevin Nini, a cosmetic surgeon from Princeton, to speak at the hospital in Isernia in October.

Many people in Princeton and Pettoranello volunteered numerous hours to ensure the success of the initial sister city exchange. Their efforts were all worth it. As Ms. Litvack stated: "It was a once-in-a lifetime experience for all of us — something we'll never be able to duplicate but will always remember. I hope they felt the same way about Princeton as we felt about Pettoranello."

The Rev. Canon Robert Leslie Clayton, D.D.

Rector Emeritus of Zion Episcopal Church of Manchester
Ecumenical Officer of Diocese of Vermont

The funeral service for the Rev. Canon Robert Leslie Clayton, D.D., 78, of Middletown Springs, VT, who died Friday, August 28, at the Vermont Medical Center in Burlington, will be held at 11:00 a.m. on Thursday, September 3, at Zion Episcopal Church in Manchester Center, VT.

He was born March 30, 1914, in Princeton, NJ, son of Robert Donahue and Dorothy (Warren) Clayton.

He graduated both from St. Stephen's College (presently Bard), Annandale-on-Hudson, NY, in 1936, and from General Theological Seminary in New York City in 1939 and continued there as a fellow and tutor until 1941. He was ordained to the Priesthood on December 16, 1939, at Trinity Cathedral in Trenton, NJ.

From 1941 to 1943 he served as curate at Christ Church, Corning, NY; as rector of the Church of the Redeemer in Addison, NY, and as rector of St. Mary's, Keyport, NJ, and Trinity, Malawan, NJ. From 1943 to 1945 he served as chaplain and history master at St. Bernard's School, Gladstone, NJ, and in 1945 became headmaster of the school until 1953. The next year was spent at St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, England, and the following year at Oxford University in England. In August of 1955 he was called to become Rector of Zion Episcopal Church, Manchester Center, VT, and St. John's Chapel, Manchester, VT, as well as priest-in-charge from 1955-1965 of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Wells, VT. He remained at Zion and St. John's until his retirement in June 1985 when he was made Rector Emeritus. In 1992 he was made Priest-in-charge Emeritus of St. Paul's, Wells.

Ecumenically he was a catalyst and an advocate both on the local and national level. He helped to form the Manchester Interfaith Council as well as serving on the Committee for Christian Unity of the Vermont Ecumenical Council. When the Interpretation Commission of the Consultation on Church Union (COCU) came into being in the early sixties, he was selected to serve on it. In 1964 he and Father Edward Foster of the Roman Catholic faith set up the use of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Wells by both congregations with the approval of the Episcopal and Roman Catholic Bishops of Vermont, a relationship which is still in place.

In 1977 he received an Honorary Doctor of Divinity Degree from the General Theological Seminary, which cited "...whose life of service to this Church represents the best tradition of a learned and pastoral priesthood." Since 1968 he served as a Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, Burlington, VT, until his retirement when he was made an Honorary Canon. Father Clayton has served on many diocesan boards and committees among them the Diocesan Council, the Standing Committee, the Religious Education Committee and the Commission on Ministry. He was dean of the Bostwick (Southwest) Deanery. He represented the Diocese of Vermont at six General Conventions of the Episcopal Church for 18 years and also was a delegate to the Anglican Congress in 1963. In 1990 he was given the Ecumenical Award of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Vermont.

He was married to Ruth Elizabeth Haskew on December 22, 1955.

Survivors include his wife; three sons, Robert E. Clayton of Manchester Center, VT, Stephen H. Clayton of Ilinesburg, VT, and T. Pepper Clayton of Mahopac, NY; two sisters, Jane C. Bennett of Rocky Mount, NC, and Margaret E. Clayton of Salisbury, MD; one grandchild, Haley Elizabeth Clayton; and two nieces, Susan B. Ross of Princeton, NJ, and Katherine Bennett of New Haven, CT; and one nephew, Robert L. Bennett of Bad Axe, MI.

There are no calling hours. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that memorial gifts be made to The Rev. Canon Robert L. Clayton Scholarship Fund (which was established in 1982 and has assisted several Burr and Burton Seminary graduates), c/o Zion Episcopal Church, P.O. Box 717, Manchester Center, VT 05255.
